

Crop circles? Nature's fault!

Pubblicato: Sabato 12 Maggio 2012

They are called crop circles, in Italian “cerchi nel grano” and they are made by artists who create fascinating and very elaborate geometric shapes. One of our readers pointed out what could have been a series of crop circles in the area between Biatese and Buscate: specialist and keen on the phenomenon Alessandro Luè tells us: “Last year one appeared in this area, but now we aren't talking about something made by men (least of all by aliens), but by nature. Maybe the person that pointed it out recalled what happened a year ago.” According to Luè, who deeply studied the phenomenon and who also filmed a documentary about it, entitled “L'Oro di Demetra” (Demetra's gold) it is a journey between people who create these geometric shapes and people who visit them, gaining energy. It could be a “natural phenomenon due to the rain last week or to the strong or weak intensity of the ears themselves, which bend down and fall on those beside them, creating a domino-like effect”.
